GENERAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

Bethlehem.

Bethlehem is situated in the beautiful Lehigh Valley, a region noted for its great natural beauty, for its teeming industries, and for many historical associations connecting it with the era of the Revolution. Bethlehem is widely known as the center of the Moravian settlements in America. Their stately and venerable mother church adorns the center of the city. Grouped around it are the quaint old buildings which housed the pioneers of the sect, and the cherished graveyard in which they sleep. Here Washington's exhausted soldiers rested after their long retreat from Germantown, and the building still stands in which the sick and wounded were nursed. Five hundred of their number were buried on a neighboring ridge. Washington himself had his headquarters here in the famous old "Sun Inn."

Along the south bank of the Lehigh for about three miles extends the great plant of the Bethlehem Steel Company, whose Cyclopean furnaces and engines are active night and day. Above and beyond this, serene and majestic on the slope of South Mountain, rest the buildings and the park of Lehigh University, flanked on either side by the city. On the left bank of the Lehigh is a canal. On each bank is a double-track railroad, over which the traffic is heavy and constant.

A view of this magnificent valley is indescribably impressive, especially in the early morning, when the mists are still asleep in its nooks and glens, and the muffled rumble of heavy trains suggests mystery and power, and calls the thoughts downward toward the great cities and the sea, or away into the distant mountains with their age-long accumulations and their millions of toilers. The great enterprises, the railroads, and the University, bring men here who are leaders of thought and captains of industry, and the boys who see them in the flesh are thrilled to emulation, and realize vividly the prizes of efficiency and the glory of leadership in this stirring age.

Bethlehem is distant from Philadelphia fifty-seven miles by the Reading Railway; while New York, eighty-six miles away, is reached by the Lehigh Valley Railroad or by the Central Railroad of New Jersey. The city is thus accessible from all points. It possesses the advantages of good air, pure water, and attractive, stimulating surroundings. Malaria is unknown, and students find the climate salubrious and bracing.

History of Foundation of School.

(From an address delivered at the school Dec. 21, 1917, by Mr. George R. Booth, Class of '82, and a present Trustee).

As one of the few who are left of the many pupils of the Bethlehem Preparatory School who had the privilege and the honor of personal contact with its founder, I have been asked by Mr. Tuggey to tell you something of the man who founded the school and the circumstances under which the school originated. It was only a short time after the founding of the school that I attended as a pupil and prepared for the entrance examinations at Lehigh University. William Frederick Augustus Ulrich was born in Germany, November 30, 1847, and died in Bethlehem, November 18th, 1897. He was educated in one of the German schools, or gymnasia as they are called, and also went to the University of Berlin, where he attended lectures and obtained his degree or, as we say, graduated. The mere mention of these institutions of learning bears witness to the thoroughness of his education, but those who were under his instructions were very soon impressed by the fact that he was not only an enthusiastic teacher, but a man whose own education and attainments were of the most thorough and far reaching kind.

The war between France and Germany, known as the Franco-Prussian War of 1870, took place when Mr. Ulrich was a young man, and as a soldier in the German Army he took part in the entire war and was present in several of the great battles and was twice wounded. Not long after the close of the war he came to this country and drifted to Bethlehem, under what circumstances or whether by accident, I do not know. The founding of the Bethlehem Preparatory School, as it is now called, like the beginnings of many great things was more by accident than design. When Mr. Ulrich was in Bethlehem, and before he had fully determined what he would do in the way of business, he happened to be at the Lehigh University for some reason and fell into conversation with one of the faculty of the University, Prof. Benjamin W. Frazier, who was professor of metallurgy and mineralogy. Prof. Frazier after talking with Mr. Ulrich for a time easily discovered that he was a man of high education and ability. As Prof. Frazier had two sons, who were then quite young and whom he wished instructed in German, French, Latin and Greek as well as in mathematics, he proposed to Mr. Ulrich that he should act as tutor for his boys during his leisure time or until he found other occupation, which would prevent his performing these duties. Mr. Ulrich accepted the offer and commenced instructing the Frazier boys, and it was not long before others of the faculty and neighbors made use of the attainments and ability of Mr. Ulrich by adding their sons to the class already formed with the Frazier boys. The success of his instruction caused his fame as a teacher to spread rapidly and it was a matter of only months before he found that a school for boys was an institution needed in Bethlehem and that here was an opening and opportunity which he was qualified to fill. This was in 1878 and by 1880 the school was both a day and boarding school with some fifty or sixty students, most of them preparing for entrance to college.

The success which Mr. Ulrich met with as a teacher was not due entirely to his own thorough education, but to personal characteristics which can not be acquired, but are part of the individual himself. He had a tremendous mental and physical energy and was filled with the greatest enthusiasm for his work, which enthusiasm he seemed able in a large measure to impart to the boys under his instruction. It was a school pre-eminent for hard work. I doubt if there has ever been a school where great tasks in the way of lessons were more thoroughly learned than in his school. He took boys totally unprepared for college and in a few months, or sometimes weeks, by his power of persuasion and his methods of enforcing the performance of enormous amounts of work, succeeded in preparing them for the rigid entrance examinations of Lehigh University. He had a supreme confidence in his own ability to accomplish that which he started to do and it was this confidence in their own power of accomplishment which he was able to instill into the boys whom he was preparing for college, and especially those who had the largest amount of preparation to make up after they came to his school. His Assistant Principal and the Headmaster of the school after Mr. Ulrich's death, Prof. Howard A. Foering, himself a teacher of no mean ability, has stated that Mr. Ulrich was the best and ablest teacher that he had ever come in contact with.

It is a pleasure in the presence of Mr. Ulrich's widow and one of his daughters to be able to pay this tribute to Mr. Ulrich, which he so fully deserved, and it is an interesting matter to me and to others who knew Mr. Ulrich to determine what his views and opinions would be at this time when the entire world is engaged in the greatest war of history, and when a state of war exists between our country and Germany, Mr. Ulrich's native land. I feel, however, from my knowledge of Mr. Ulrich's views politically and socially, growing out of many conversations with him in the years after I had left school and college, that at this juncture of affairs he would be heart and soul an American and in full accord with the policies and projects of the United States in the present war. Mrs. Ulrich and her children feel the same way in regard to what his attitude would be.

In closing I can refer to the success at the present day of the Bethlehem Preparatory School due to the thoroughness of its methods of teaching and its success in the preparation of boys for college, and say without hesitation that the elements which have made for the success of the school were made a part of the school by its founder, Mr. Ulrich, and that he himself and his spirit were infused into the school and still are part and parcel of the spirit of the institution. We have thus a demonstration that a man's work lives after him.

Purpose.

During the past forty years we have sent approximately 1600 boys to various colleges and universities. Thorough work is our standard and the unanimous endorsement of our work by colleges and universities, and the successful record of our students are abundant evidence of the thoroughness of our preparation. The purpose of the school is to prepare students to do their college work with pleasure and profit. This preparation presupposes an accumulation of a certain degree of knowledge and the development of a certain degree of power. Careful attention is given to the training of the individual student. It is our unvarying aim to set each boy upon his own legs, to develop his courage, his independence, and his confidence, so that he acquires the habit of success and faces difficulties with the proper spirit.

The war in which is concentrating all the world's energy that can be spared from the struggle for existence, is not for our boys; yet very soon they will either have to bear a part in it beside their older brothers, or they will have the even more exacting work of moving the débris and ordering the chaos that the storm has left. They must renew and reassemble the scattered and mangled mechanism of civilization for the great forward movement that is sure to come when the rage subsides. Never in human history has there been such a call and such vast and luring opportunity as certainly awaits the generation now maturing. Never did more solemn responsibility rest upon those who are building the men of the future. This school earnestly desires to do its part to key the hearts and minds of its fledglings for the great years before them.

School Location.

The school is located near the intersection of Eighth Avenue and Broad Street, in that part of the city known as the West Side, on a fine level tract, high above the river and overlooking the city, and miles away from the factories. The school grounds are adjacent to the buildings.

The Bethlehem, Allentown and Easton trolley cars pass within one square, and people coming to school by trolley should alight at Eighth Avenue. Strangers coming by train will find carriages more convenient and the charge reasonable.

Recitation Halls and Dormitories.

The main building, erected in 1901, is a substantial four-story brick structure, fully equipped and modern in every detail. Later an extension was added to the main building conforming to it in architectural appearance. This extension is absolutely fire-proof: the outer walls are of brick, the inner walls of machite blocks, and the floors of reenforced concrete. The building has also three fire walls.

The first floor contains the classrooms, reading room, the office, and a large assembly room for lectures, etc. On the second and third floors are the dormitories. These rooms are large, well lighted and ventilated. They meet in every way all modern demands for comfort, convenience and health. Each floor is supplied with lavatories and shower baths. The whole building is heated by steam and lighted by electricity. The ground floor contains the kitchen and dining room, the seating capacity of the latter being one hundred and fifty.

The gymnasium consists of a four-story brick building, 85 x 40. The main floor is 65 x 37 in the clear, fully equipped; it contains an inclined running track, and gallery overlooking this room. There are also a swimming pool, shower baths, sponge baths, steel lockers, and all the appointments of a first-class gymnasium. The third floor contains dormitories; the rooms are large, well lighted, heated by steam, and there are shower baths on the same floor.

Lower School.

During the summer of 1917 a four-story building was erected on the campus for the education of boys between the ages of six and fourteen. No expense was spared to make this building a model school building and home. The third and fourth floors are devoted to the living quarters of the boys. The second floor contains classrooms, an assembly room, and a large library and living room. The basement has a manual training room, a laboratory and lecture room, as well as a bicycle room. The building is equipped with excellent heating and plumbing facilities. The whole building is artistically decorated and furnished, giving it the atmosphere of a delightful home.

Water Supply.

The buildings are all supplied with water from the reservoir of the Bethlehem City Water Company. This water is filtered through one of the most modern and efficient filters, and regular bi-monthly analyses prove that the purity of the water is absolutely and constantly maintained.

The Reading Room.

On the first floor of the Main Building is the reading room and library. On its tables are found daily newspapers and many of the best magazines. On its shelves are dictionaries, encyclopedias and reference books, as well as many of the standard works of English literature. Books and periodicals are accessible to students at all hours of the day. The living room in the Lower School building is also open to all students of the school. Here the musical clubs gather for practice, and in this room various student organizations hold their meetings.

ADMISSION AND COURSES OF STUDY.Admission.

The school is now thoroughly equipped to receive boys as boarders or day students from the age of six upward and to give them the training and education necessary to prepare them for any College or Technical School and also for business pursuits. Boys are received in any class provided they show by examination or certificate that they have completed the work of the classes next below the one they wish to enter.

The school is divided into an Upper School consisting of four years of work termed respectively Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Forms, and a Lower School of eight years work, First, Second and Third Primary, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Intermediate and First and Second forms.

English.

The English Course is arranged with a two-fold object in view. First, to train the student to express himself clearly and forcibly in both oral and written English. Second, to acquaint him with some of the treasures of English Literature and enable him to read these with intelligence and appreciation.

That the first purpose may be accomplished our course is divided into three studies: grammar, rhetoric and composition. The first two years are taken up with a thorough drill in grammar and the writing of compositions. Careful attention is given to the student's mastery of syntax, spelling and punctuation. By the time a student has completed these two years he is expected to be able to write grammatically correct English. The study of rhetoric is then taken up and in the third year covers the following ground. English words, to increase the vocabulary and facilitate the ready choice of correct words; the rhetorical structure of the sentence and the paragraph; the chief qualities of style; and figures of speech. During the fourth year the student studies the different kinds of prose composition—description, narration, exposition and argumentation—and also the essential elements of verse composition. The writing of composition is of course continued throughout.

The reading and studying of literature goes hand in hand with the grammar, rhetoric and composition. Representative novels, essays, dramas and poems are read and discussed. During the first three years no attempt is made to study any one work very critically, the primary object being to acquaint the student as much as possible with the various fields of literature and to stimulate his interest and appreciation. The fourth year, however, is devoted to what we know as study. The various literary works are discussed with greater emphasis upon content, structure and style. The object is to increase the student's ability to read with keener insight and truer understanding.

Greek.

First Year: White's First Year Greek, Constant practice in pronunciation, Systematic review of inflection.

Preliminary list of irregular verbs, Anabasis begun at Easter.

Second Year: Goodwin & White's Anabasis. Bks. I-IV, completed and reviewed. Goodwin & White's Composition. Secondary list of irregular verbs.

Third Year: Seymour's Iliad, Books I-III. Perrin's Odyssey—sight reading. Prosody and Mythology. Final grammar review.

French.

The school has particular pride in the opportunity which it can offer for the study of French. This department is in charge of a teacher of very unusual efficiency, whose magnetic and contagious energy stimulates every boy to the best that is in him. Only an occasional incurable sluggard fails under her inspiring and vigorous discipline. The noble sentiment existing between America and France is now being revealed, vivified and touched to fine fruiting. This most perfect language may in the near future be second only to English, and we have much pleasure that we can offer in it instruction of such unique quality.

The course covers three years of meticulous and incessant grammatical drill, the accumulation of an accurate vocabulary, much translation and abundant composition.

German.

The complete course of training in German is extended over a period of three years, although a student need only take two years work in order to be certified into college or be able to pass the College Board examinations.

By the time a student has completed this entire course he should be able to read at sight with fair accuracy and speed German texts of ordinary difficulty; to translate into German simple English prose based either upon the reading or upon the things of every-day life; to follow the trend of thought when the language is spoken clearly and distinctly. He should also have some idea of the more important facts of German literature. Moreover, apart from a knowledge of German itself, we aim, by constant insistence upon accurate and clearly understood work, to effect that formal training of the mind which language study in all secondary schools should bring with it.

The work of the first year consists chiefly of thorough drill in the elements of grammar, in the art of pronunciation and in the ready use of fundamental natural forms of expression. No attempt is made to enable the student by the end of this year to carry on a "parlor conversation," or to read with any degree of rapidity which, at best, can only be hap-hazard. We consider a good foundation in the principles of grammar, pronunciation and natural expression as essential.

The second year is then devoted more definitely to practice in accurate reading and to translation into German of simple English sentences. The student is required to read from 150 to 200 pages of easy German literature. This is supplemented by conversation directed with specific aims and based upon the text in order to strengthen his memory of vocabulary and idiomatic expressions, to give him practice in the application of rules, and to foster increasing readiness in formulating the language. Moreover, constant drill in the elements of grammar is kept up throughout the year.

The third year is essentially like the second except that the work proceeds far more rapidly and goes into greater detail. The student reads from 300 to 400 pages of moderately difficult prose and poetry; the grammar is reviewed with particular attention to advanced details; definite attention is given to the outstanding features of German literature; the work of the classroom is, to a large extent, carried on entirely in German.

A student who passes this third year is prepared for entrance into the sophomore year of most college courses.

Spanish.

The Spanish course is outlined on the theory that ability to write and pronounce idiomatic Spanish is more needed than acquaintance with its literary masterpieces. This is not to neglect mental discipline, which can be obtained from composition and a mastery of paradigms. Thorough drill in phonetics continues till correct pronunciation becomes second nature. Every day there is either an oral exercise by the method of question and answer, or a criticism of written work where each pupil sees the exact nature of his own errors and those of his classmates.

First Year: De Vitis' Grammar completed. Business Correspondence begun. Reading of Mármol's "Amalia."

Second Year: De Vitis reviewed. Rapid Reading of portions of De Vitis' Reader. Alarcón's "Captain Veneno," Waxman's "Trip to South America," Crawford's Spanish Composition.

History

In the course in English History particular stress is laid upon the progress of English liberty through the development of Parliament and the system of Cabinet Government.

The course in American History is based on Muzzey. "It is the aim to give the emphasis to those factors in our national development which appeal to us as most vital from the standpoint of today, and to explain prevailing conditions and institutions by showing how they have come about."

American Government is a very important course, emphasizing the responsibility of the pupil, as a future citizen, for the development of better government. It explains clearly and forcefully what it is to be an American and the student becomes familiar with the idea of the state and the machinery of government.

The earliest civilizations are presented in Ancient History with some idea of what is known of prehistoric times. The special contributions of each country to the civilization of the world are studied with special emphasis upon the peculiarly important places held by Greece and Rome.

Mathematics.

Mathematics, more than any other study, will develop a student's reasoning faculties. Logical thinking, combined with accuracy in result, is the object of this study.

The scope of the courses in this department covers all branches of secondary mathematics, satisfying the most exacting college or technical school entrance requirements.

In view of the fact that so many of our graduates go to engineering or technical schools, the training of this department is particularly rigid, thorough and exacting.

Third Form: Entire subject of arithmetic is reviewed and the student trained to be proficient in all arithmetical principles and operations, thus giving the necessary basis for future courses. Algebra begun.

Fourth Form: Algebra (Hall & Knight) and Plane Geometry (Wentworth-Smith) alternating on successive recitations. This course does not necessarily aim to cover any certain number of pages in either subject. Thoroughness, rather than amount of text, is the aim. The principles and propositions are taken up slowly and carefully. A great deal of drilling is done, thus giving a thorough grounding in fundamentals. Five periods per week throughout the year.

Fifth Form: Algebra (Hall & Knight). Covers all of elementary algebra, through quadratics to progressions and the binomial theorem. It presupposes a study of algebra in which the fundamentals have been inculcated. Emphasis is here placed on the mechanical side and skill in its manipulation. Five periods per week throughout the year.

Plane Geometry (Wentworth-Smith): The five books of plane geometry together with original exercises and construction problems, taken along with the theorems, constitute the work of this course. Stress is laid on formal reasoning and the solution of originals. Five periods per week throughout the year.

Sixth Form: Solid Geometry (Wentworth-Smith): The purpose of this course is to develop three dimension space concepts; extend the knowledge of logical reasoning, and derive the rules for mensuration. The theorems, constructions and originals constitute the work of this course. Five periods per week for the half year.

Trigonometry (Wentworth): Definitions and relations of the six trigonometric functions as ratios; circular measurement of angles. Proof of the principal formulas. Solution of trigonometric equations. Theory and use of logarithms. The solution of right and oblique triangles and practical applications. Spherical trigonometry is optional. Five periods per week for the half year.

Science.

Our science course is designed to appeal to those who desire definite instruction and training either for a career in science or the conduct of business enterprises along scientific lines.

We emphasize personal work in the laboratories and are equipped with all necessary apparatus, so that each student may perform the carefully prepared course of experiments to enable him to comprehend natural phenomena and their causes.

Botany: Daily recitations and weekly laboratory periods of which accurate and complete notes are required. Protoplasm, the cell as a living unit, root, stem, leaf, flower, fruit, and seed, are taken up in order. The economic aspect, of forests, foodstuffs and life are reviewed. Bethlehem offers great opportunities for the out-of-door study of plant forms and these are studied in a few field trips.

Physics: Here the regular required experiments are supplemented with problems and original questions to impress the student with the laws that govern in this department of science.

A carefully prepared notebook is required of each student.

Chemistry: In Chemistry each student performs sufficient work to acquaint him with the use of apparatus and also to enable him personally to test the general properties and behaviour of the most important elements and reagents, a report being required of each experiment and the results. There is much drill in the writing of formulae and the solution of chemical problems.

Terms.

The minimum rate of the school is $650, though there are a few rooms for $550. Boys living in the new building are charged $750. Day students are charged $150.00.

These prices include room, board, tuition, heat, light, laundering, the latter limited to eighteen pieces a week. Books, and laundering of fine shirts and collars are extra. The first payment must be one-half of the rate charged plus $10.00 to cover breakage and $12.00 to cover books. The portion of these last two deposits remaining at the end of the year will be returned. An advance payment of $25.00 is necessary at time of application to secure room. A charge of $10.00 is made upon each student for the Athletic Association. All students taking Physical Laboratory pay $5.00; those taking Chemical Laboratory, $10.00. In case of sickness 25 cents is charged for each meal served in the boy's room.

First payment, one-half the rate with deposits. Must be made September 18th, 1918. Second payment, with any extras, January 31st, 1919.

All applications are for the entire year, or the part remaining at time of entrance, unless otherwise expressly agreed upon and no rebates will be made for any cause. In case of prolonged illness the parent will be credited with the cost of board for that time. The school does not receive students for the first half year and any one leaving at that time must pay for the whole school year. Students whose bills are not paid promptly at times specified will be dismissed unless satisfactory arrangements are made by parent or guardian.

Checks should be drawn to order of M. E. Allen, Treasurer.

If parents desire money to be advanced, or articles to be furnished by the school, a sufficient deposit must be made with the Head Master.

Summer School.

The Summer School opens July 8th and continues until the College examinations in September. The purpose of this school is to enable students to get a thorough review of any subjects which they may need to enter college in the fall. Boys who have failed in any studies during the school year are able to make up his work in the summer and thus continue with their classes at the opening of the fall term. The regular instructors of the school are in charge of the work. They have had experience in preparing boys in this way and the results have been excellent. During this term of ten weeks a boy may review a whole year's work, thus saving him an extra year in school. This should especially appeal to older boys and those who have to consider the financial side of an education.

Our baseball field, tennis courts, baths, gymnasium, etc., are all open to the students. School begins at eight a. m. and continues until twelve-thirty p. m. Students have the afternoons for recreation or study. Instructors live at the school and are always available for assistance and advice.

The cost for day students is $75, for boarders $200.00.

Miscellaneous Information

Church.

The Bishop of the Diocese of Bethlehem is President of the Board of Trustees and the Rector of Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church is chaplain of the school. But the school is strictly non-sectarian and boys of all religious faiths are found here in equal numbers. Every effort is made to impress upon each student the importance of clean, upright living, thus looking forward to a strong, vigorous manhood. From time to time clergymen from various churches are invited to conduct the chapel exercises and to address the school. On Sunday each student must attend his own church.

Athletics.

In order that the mind may do its best work, it is necessary that the blood stream be kept as clear as possible. This is partly accomplished by encouraging athletic activities. Whenever possible these activities must go on out of doors. Lounging in rooms is distinctly discouraged. Participation in some form of school athletics is often times a boy's salvation morally, mentally, as well as physically.

The school campus gives plenty of opportunity for football and tennis in the fall, the gymnasium for basketball and all indoor games in the winter, and in the spring baseball, tennis and track are supreme. This school meets the very best preparatory schools in all branches of sport, thus giving the student the zest of competition and the opportunity of fighting for his school which develops in him a loyalty which will enhance his patriotism.

All athletics are in the hands of expert coaches, who see that they are properly regulated and that students are taught proper methods of play.

Physical Training and Military Training.

Regular systematic exercise is required of every boy in school. Boys not actively engaged in athletics must report for special work calculated to meet their own peculiar needs.

Military Training is given under the direction of a properly qualified officer. The purpose is two-fold: first to develop the student physically and second to train him in military science that this knowledge may be of immediate benefit to him when he is called upon to serve his country.

Lectures.

This school is particularly fortunate in being located in a town where there is a large industrial corporation and a great University. Many opportunities are given our students both at the school and in the town of hearing men of national reputation talk on questions of the day. The school has a special course of talks on the various vocations by representative men in each. These enable the boys to judge more wisely about their own careers.

Publications.

Besides the regular annual bulletin of the school other publications which are of special interest to the friends of the school are the Old School Letter, issued quarterly to all alumni; The Red and Black, a monthly, edited and managed by a student Board; and The Résumé, a year book, also managed by the student body. These publications give the student an opportunity of developing and practicing his journalistic talents.

Clubs.

Under the direction of the Science Department a "Modern Methods Club" has been formed. This club is composed of a limited number of students, all of whom are required to have a high scholastic standing. Frequent trips are taken to many manufacturing concerns in Bethlehem and vicinity for the purpose of observing the practical application of the principles studied in the classroom.

There are four musical organizations at school, in which any student with musical ability is eligible to membership: The Glee Club furnishes music for all school entertainments; with its work is associated the Quartet; the Orchestra also performs when the school needs its services; from it has developed a Guitar and Mandolin Club.

In order that students so inclined may have the privilege of moderate social diversion, the school encourages dances to be held at frequent intervals during the school year. These dances are either under the direct supervision of the Faculty or are conducted by the Cotillion Club and other school organizations.

The Students' Council is a very important factor in the life of the school. It works on the plan that whatever is best for the school is best for the student and vice versa. The members of this council are elected by the students. Any matter which directly or indirectly affects the student body can be discussed in its meetings. This organization has proved to be of the utmost value.

Prizes and Awards.

Lehigh University offers annually to this school three scholarships—half tuition for four years. Two of these are given to the students ranking highest in the scientific department, the other to the one ranking highest in the classical department.

Muhlenburg College offers this school a scholarship in Arts, Science or Philosophy. The school also has other College scholarships.

The school offers four scholarships of the value of $100.00 each to pupils pursuing a classical course. The school also offers four scholarships of the value of $50.00 each to pupils taking the scientific course. Particulars can be had on application.

Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute gives a medal to the student who has made the best progress in Mathematics and science. J. H. Bowden Krell won this in 1917.

The Booth Medals are awarded to the winners of the annual oratorical contest. These medals are donated by George R. Booth, '82. In 1917 these went to Samuel Braybrook and Willis J. Parker.

Gold medals of different designs are given both sides in the Mid-year Debate. In 1918 the debate was on the question, "Resolved, That the United States Government should own and operate the Telegraph Systems." On the affirmative were Herbert T. Edwards, George McConnell, Richard J. Clarke, on the negative Leon Travis, George Haslam, Charles Mellinger. The medals are donated by the Alumni association.

Reports and Regulations.

Bi-weekly reports are sent to the parents. These are truthful statements of what each boy is accomplishing. They should be carefully considered by the parent and each boy should feel that his parents are deeply interested in these reports. The headmaster and faculty are glad to confer with any parent at any time in regard to his son's progress.

The aim of the school is high. It expects the best possible results. All regulations are made with this in mind. The school expects each boy to work. No loafer and no one who shows by his habits that he is a possible detriment to the school will be tolerated.

What Each Boy Should Bring.

Three pairs of sheets for single bed.

Three pillow cases.

Two white counterpanes.

Two pairs of blankets.

Napkins.

Towels.

Rug (Floor is uncarpeted).

Napkin ring.

Two laundry bags.

Each room is furnished with single iron bedstead, spring and mattress, study table, chair, and dresser.
